W. P. A. Status In County Still Uncertain

OFFICIALS TOLD TO PROVIDE BIG WORK PROJECTS

Men To Be Discharged As Present Jobs Close, Watson Declares

OHIOANS PROTEST MOVE

40 Other Districts Facing Program Suspension

Commissioners and D. H. Marcy, relief director, agreed Saturday they were still uncertain about the status of W.P.A. in Pickaway county.

The county officials, with delegations from 40 other rural counties of the state, attended a conference in Columbus, Friday afternoon, called by Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio W.P.A. administrator, for a discussion of plans to discontinue W.P.A. in the smaller counties.

"We were told the men will be discharged as projects are completed," Ralph May, president of the board of commissioners, explained, "but they want large projects to replace smaller ones."

Counties Protest—Almost unanimous protests were made by officials of the various counties against the withdrawal of W.P.A. Whether withdrawal will be carried out remained undetermined Saturday.

As a possible alternative Dr. Watson suggested commissioners develop the large projects employing 75 or more men each to replace the small projects which necessitate a prohibitive cost of supervision. If this is done, he indicated, it may be possible to "carry on."

Several weeks ago Dr. Watson announced that in counties with fewer than 300 W.P.A. workers operations would be "tapered off" by completing projects now in progress and starting no new ones. Pickaway county, however, was permitted to start the Salt creek bridge improvement, Salt creek township. At present, there are 137 persons employed on W.P.A. in this county.

Further Cut Certain—Under orders from Washington the state's total W.P.A. quota was (Continued on Page Two)

GRASS-CUTTERS SLASH TENDONS WITH BIG KNIVES

The Williamsport community was the scene of two accidents, Friday, when two persons suffered severed tendons.

Walter Van Gundy, who has been making his home with Sam Pontius at Kinderhook, was cutting grass with a corn-cutter when the knife slipped, slashing his left wrist. Van Gundy was taken to Berger hospital for treatment by Dr. G. D. Sheets. The accident happened about noon.

Mrs. William Schleich, 40, of near Williamsport, slashed a tendon in her left leg at 7 p. m. while she was cutting grass. She too, was taken to Berger hospital.

To War Office

FORMER commander of the American Legion, Louis A. Johnson, 46, of Clarksville, W. Va., has been selected by President Roosevelt for post of assistant secretary of war. Johnson, now a lawyer, was named to fill a vacancy caused by the elevation of Harry Woodring from the assistant secretaryship to be secretary of war.

SIX INJURED BY RUNAWAY CARS

East Liverpool Scene Of Traffic Trouble After Tractors Collide

EAST LIVERPOOL, June 19.—(UP)—Two runaway street cars raced through the business district here today, injured six persons and caused damage estimated at $10,000.

The cars, with no motormen at the controls, sped a half mile, wrecking automobiles, knocking down poles, traffic lights and trees.

The injured: William Boyce, of Wellsville, motorman of an interurban car, which was destroyed. Harry Carpenter of East Liverpool, whose parked automobile was smashed by the cars.

Clara Harley of East Liverpool, passenger in the interurban car. Mr. and Mrs. George Grimes of East Liverpool, passengers in the interurban.

Mrs. Flora Coburn of East Liverpool, riding in the interurban. The accident occurred when the interurban struck a city car in charge of Motorman Jason Yanev who had stopped to move an automobile parked near the right-of-way.

The collision disabled the control systems of both cars, witnesses said, and with power turned (Continued on Page Two)

REBELS REPORT BILBAO CAPTURE AFTER LONG WAR

GIBRALTAR, June 19.—(UP)—The Nationalist radio broadcast an official announcement at 3:25 p. m. claiming that Bilbao has been captured.

BIARRITZ, France, June 19.—(UP)—The Spanish insurgents, after months of ferocious siege in one of history's most cruel civil wars, finally entered the Basque capital of Bilbao today.

The troops invaded the city from two directions. The first columns descended the mountains from Begona, northeast of Bilbao, and the second along the Nervion river from Galdacano, to the southeast.

Both columns converged on the old quarter of the city along the right bank of the Nervion.

GRACE REFUSES TO CEASE WORK AT STEEL MILL

Request Of Pennsylvania's Governor Turned Down Despite Dangers

DEMONSTRATION PLANNED

Rights Of 14,000 Who Want To Work Demanded

BULLETIN

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 19.—(UP)—Gov. George H. Earle today ordered 640 state police to enforce martial law at Johnstown, Pa., and close the strike-bound Cambria plant of the Bethlehem Steel company.

The governor ordered Col. Augustine S. Janeway to take 500 additional state police and highway patrolmen to the steel strike city to reinforce 140 state police already on duty there.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., June 19.—(UP)—Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, telegraphed Gov. George H. Earle of Pennsylvania today, refusing to comply with the governor's request that he close the Johnstown Steel plant to prevent possible bloodshed.

Grace informed the governor, in a telegram released by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation's offices here, that to close the plant "could well be more serious than the demonstration you referred to."

Demonstration Feared—Earle accompanied his request that the plant be closed with a warning that 40,000 miners were planning to demonstrate at the plant Sunday.

"For us to close the plant," Grace replied "would involve the admission on our part that the forces of law of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania are powerless to protect our men in the exercise of their right to work."

TRIO MENTIONED FOR KLOEB JOB IN LOWER HOUSE

LIMA, June 19.—(UP)—Three Democrats were prominently mentioned today as possible candidates to fill the vacancy in Ohio's Congressional delegation created by appointment of Rep. Frank Kloeb to a federal judgeship.

Francis P. Durbin, Lima, said he had been urged by many to run but that he would "confer with leaders in the district and do what they decide best for the party."

"I believe the best interests of the party and the success of the nation more important than any personal ambitions I may have," he said.

Fred P. Elsass, Shelby county, clerk of the state house of representatives, said he probably would be a candidate. Also mentioned was State Senator William R. Foss, Mercer county.

Gov. Davey indicated the vacancy would be filled at the regular election next November.

RANGOON, Burma, June 19.—(UP)—Amelia Earhart, flying round the world, reached Rangoon at 7:40 a. m. Greenwich mean time (2:40 a. m. EST) today from Akyab, up the Burmese coast.

"TAX THING" DITHERS OVER LAUGHTON'S HEAD

LONDON, June 19.—(UP)—Charles Laughton, asked by the Daily Express about his inclusion in a list of alleged tax avoiders at Washington, said today:

"My dear fellow, I don't know anything about it. It's been dithering over my head for two years now and I'm so tired of hearing about it!" (Dither: to tremble, quake, quiver, shake; also bother, trouble.)

LOYALISTS FIRE ON NAZI LINER

Two Attacks On Leipzig Reported To Hitler; Conferences Held

BERLIN, June 19.—(UP)—A Spanish loyalist submarine fired three torpedoes at the crack German cruiser Leipzig off Oran, Algeria, June 15, an official communiqué said today.

The cruiser was not hit. The ship was attacked a second time at 3:30 p. m. yesterday, it was asserted.

After a series of urgent conferences among leaders of the Nazi government it was announced that Germany would ask that the neutrality control powers—Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany—meet, under the revised control agreement, to undertake pertinent measures.

"The German government, at any rate, is not willing to look on (idly) at the practice shooting by Spanish Bolshevik U-boat pirates until in the end they may even score a hit," said the communiqué sarcastically.

COUNTY HORSES TO COMPETE IN LANCASTER TEST

Four Pickaway county teams will be tugging in the traces Sunday in the third horse-pulling contest of the season to be held in Lancaster under direction of the Horse Pulling Association of Ohio, Inc., and the Fairfield County Agricultural Society.

Pickaway county teams and their owners are: Jean and Bess, and Sam and Jim, George Hinton & Sons, Commercial Point. Jim and Nip, Earle Vincent, Jr., New Holland, and King and Scotty, owned by Kirk & Vincent, New Holland.

About 30 teams are expected to take part in the contest.

CALDWELL GIVES BOND TO APPEAR IN GUN FRACAS

William Caldwell, 29, Wayne township farmer, was released from the county jail Saturday under a $500 bond.

Caldwell was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of shooting with intent to wound Edward Hamilton, 32, a neighbor, during a gun duel.

Pickford and Rogers Apply for License

LOS ANGELES, June 19.—(UP)—The word was out and the crowd was waiting with cameras, bouquets and autograph books when Mary Pickford and Charles (Buddy) Rogers arrived at the marriage license bureau to make application for their wedding June 26.

FARMERS LEARN CARE OF FIELDS AGAINST WORMS

About 200 Present To Hear State Entomologist Tell Campaign Details

MANY FIELDS INFESTED

Destroyers To Stay Another Week or 10 Days

"Army worms will be on the job in Pickaway county for another week or ten days."

This prediction was made Friday night by T. H. Park, extension entomologist of Ohio State university, at a meeting of approximately 200 farmers on the farm of Howard Younkin, one mile east of Robstown.

The meeting was called by F. K. Blair, county extension agent, to demonstrate the correct method of mixing and applying poison bran mash for control of the pests.

Fields Require Care—"Patrol your fields every day," Mr. Park warned farmers. "These worms will destroy several acres of corn in a night. They come from a moth that flies around late in May, and the infestation here probably came from some southern state. The eggs are laid in wheat or other grass plants and hatch early in June. The worms feed on grass plants until they are full grown, then bury themselves in the ground to enter the pupa stage."

"Moths of the army worm have been taken with trap lights on the top of the AIU tower in Columbus. They fly long distances."

Previously in 1931 Mr. Park said he had checked records of the infestation here in 1931 and found the first reports of the worms were received on June 12. The last were received on June 30.

"The worms seem to follow a dry season," he said. He explained the present crop of worms will not return in sufficient numbers any more this year to present a problem to farmers.

Army worms do most of their feeding at night. He advised farmers to spread the poisoned bait (Continued on Page Two)

WHEAT CUT AT STEELEY FARM BELIEVED FIRST

First report of wheat cutting was received Saturday from Washington township.

George Steeley and his son, Marvin, cut a patch containing about three-quarters of an acre, Friday. They will open up larger fields Monday if weather conditions permit.

Throughout the county farmers are sharpening sickles, and repairing and oiling their binders to start wheat cutting next week.

Democrats to Frolic on Island

ON JEFFERSON island in Chesapeake bay, Democratic representatives and senators plan a three-day stag party headed by President Roosevelt. The retreat was founded by Harry Hawes, former senator from Missouri, who will be host to the visitors. Photos show a view of the island and an interior view of the president's living room.

Scout Court of Honor and Campfire Planned

Troop 158's cabin at Gold Cliff Chateau, four miles south of Circleville, will be the scene of the Quarterly Court of Honor for Boy Scouts of the Pickaway district.

The Court of Honor ceremony, which recognizes the achievement of scouts, will be held outdoors in conjunction with a special campfire program Wednesday evening, June 30.

Parents and friends are urged to take advantage of the picnic facilities available at the site, and Scoutmasters hope to have a large representation of adults present. Boys will take part in the huge campfire in scout singing, stunts and stories, in addition to receiving awards. The campfire program will begin at dusk, about 8 o'clock.

The district flag will be awarded to the troop receiving the Court of Honor. It is now in possession of Troop 5, Kingston Presbyterian church, which received it at the last Court of Honor about three months ago.

Scouts who have passed certain requirements will be recipients of awards at the court. By progressing through the ranks of Tenderfoot, Second Class and First Class Scouts, boys prepare themselves in first aid, camping, woodcraft, and hiking, as well as citizenship, service to others and similar qualities which scouting seeks to develop in America's future citizens.

Four members of the Wayne township board of education were unable to agree on the employment of a seventh and eighth grade teacher Friday night. Another meeting will be held next Thursday evening. The seventh and eighth grade teacher serves also as principal.

TWO CARS CRASH AT INTERSECTION OF RURAL ROADS

A collision at Leistville, the intersection of 56 and 159 Friday afternoon resulted in minor injuries to four persons riding in one car and one man in another.

The car driven by Mrs. Sam Myers, Oak street, New Boston, collided with the roadster of Chester Stevens, near Whisler. The New Boston car was travelling north on 159, toward Zanesville, while Stevens was driving east on Route 56. In the New Boston car besides the driver were Mrs. Daisy Hemp-hill and daughter Ida Fern, and Gertrude Hoffman. The cars were damaged considerably.

AIRPLANE CROSSES POLE

Russians Keep Plan Secret For More Than Day

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—(UP)—Three Russian fliers raced through strong headwinds down the western hemisphere from the North Pole today, as they moved across the top of the world from Moscow toward San Francisco on a non-stop, 6,250-mile flight in a single-motored plane.

At 3:20 a. m. (EST) the fliers reported by radio that they were 550 miles this side of the North Pole heading for northern Canada. It was the greatest aerial adventure since Charles A. Lindbergh set out alone across the Atlantic ocean ten years ago.

The Soviet consulate in San Francisco announced that the plane had crossed the pole at 9:10 PST (12:10 a. m. Saturday EST). The flight began in official Soviet secrecy and progressed in the isolated silence of the Arctic wastes. Radio messages from the red and gray, ultra-streamlined monoplane indicated that it was making less than its regular 100 miles an hour speed because of the wind.

Messages Relayed—These messages were directed to Moscow and relayed in the United States through the Russian embassy. The war department picked up infrequent signals at its Anchorage, Alaska, station and relayed them to Washington.

The flight had been 18 hours under way before it was announced by General William E. Gilmore of the National Aeronautical association and confirmed by the Soviet ambassador to the United States, Alexander Troyanovsky, who came by plane to San Francisco to await the plane's arrival.

Early today the fliers were past the half-way mark. They were expected here early Sunday morning.

Their route lay across a wilderness of ancient ice from the pole to Point Barrow, Alaska, a distance of 1,200 miles, thence over the peninsula to Seattle. Today they were in uncharted region where fierce Arctic storms swirl continually and no meteorological information is available to them.

Plane Might Float—Forced down on water, the wings would keep the plane afloat for a short time. But a landing short (Continued on Page Two)

BARRIE, CREATOR OF MANY FAMED FIGURES, IS DEAD

LONDON, June 19.—(UP)—Sir James Matthew Barrie, creator of Peter Pan and other characters who won the hearts of the world, died of bronchial pneumonia in a nursing home today at the age of 77.

The famous author and dramatist, who "saw life through the eyes of a child," lived almost as a recluse in his declining years. Although he retired from the public gaze, his memory was still green in the minds of the generation which laughed and cried over Peter Pan, "The Little Minister," "What Every Woman Knows," "Dear Brutus," and other tender, understanding portrayals.

Besides members of the family, those at the bedside in Barrie's dying moments were Peter and Nicholas Davies, brothers whom Barrie adopted after Peter Davies as a child inspired him to write Peter Pan.

Unlike the character he inspired, Peter "grew up" and now is in middle age.

Announcement of Barrie's death was made at 1:57 p. m. but the time of death was not specified. It was announced that he had been unconscious since before 8 a. m.

SENATE TO VOTE ON RELIEF BILL EARLY IN WEEK

Debate To Be Limited To 20 Minutes On Major Measure

NEED SEEN FOR ACTION

Ballot On Byrne Program Is Abandoned

WASHINGTON, June 19.—(UP)—Senate leaders sought to bring the $1,500,000,000 relief bill to a final vote Monday.

Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas obtained an agreement to limit debate by any senator to 15 minutes on an amendment and 20 minutes on the bill.

He tried to force a vote yesterday on the Byrnes amendment to require local communities to furnish 40 percent of the cost of Works Progress administration projects and to hold the senate in a Saturday session to pass the bill. Both attempts were abandoned because of prolonged debate.

Robinson cited the need for final action Monday to send the measure to conference with the house in time for an agreement before July 1, start of the new fiscal year.

on the street cars began their dash through traffic.

Trucks of the interurban were derailed and the car swept broadside along the street battering two automobiles that stood in its path.

Trolley wires were pulled down and a dozen poles ripped down.

Carpenter was sitting in his car, which was parked along the curb when the interurban came weaving down the street. He didn't have time to jump and was cut by flying glass.

The interurban was finally stopped when it became wedged across the street in a tangle of cars, wires and trees. The city car was blocked in its flight when it struck an automobile.

THEATRES

AT THE CLIFTONA

With Spencer Tracy, Gladys George and Franchot Tone teamed in the leading roles, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "They Gave Him a Gun," comes to the Cliftona Theatre Sunday for a four-day showing.

Tracy is seen as Fred Willis, circus barker, in the adaptation of the William Joyce Cowen best-seller, while Franchot Tone plays the small town bookkeeper, Jimmy Davis, who turns racketeer following the war.

Gladys George is the Red Cross nurse, Rose Duffy, whom they both love.

Featured supporting roles include Cliff (Ukelele Ike) Edwards as Laro, Tracy's circus helper, and Mary Lou Treen as Saxe, Rose Duffy's fellow-nurse. There are approximately 250 speaking parts, all told. The picture was directed by W. S. Van Dyke II.

of Point Barrow easily might mean death from cold and starvation. Valerie Chkalov, 33, was at the controls of the plane. With him were Georgi Baidukov, 30, co-pilot, and Alex Beliakov, navigator. They left Moscow unannounced at 4:05 a. m. Friday, Moscow time (9:05 p. m. Thursday EST.) and were nearly up the eastern hemisphere to the pole when their flight was revealed to the world.

Weather conditions were believed to have improved for the flight this side of the pole. Storm warnings, which had been flying as far north as Tatoush island in Alaska to Marshallfield, Ore., were ordered down by the U. S. weather bureau, which reported that southerly gales along the Pacific were abating.

Two messages picked up at the Anchorage station late Friday, spaced three hours apart, indicated the plane was making about 80 miles an hour. The messages said "all was well," and the plane was at 13,000 feet altitude, apparently evading the Arctic fog.

As they crossed the pole, the fliers passed close to a Soviet weather station that was established there a few weeks ago. Purpose of the flight was to explore the top of the world for regular air service possibilities.

A polar route would reduce the distance of air travel from Moscow to North America by half. The weather station was set up at the pole in preparation for the new commercial service that Russia plans, and apparently it was decided that an actual flight was the most practical means of testing the route.

The plane was designed five years ago but it carried the latest mechanical improvements and extra gasoline tanks. It is the same plane in which Sigismund Levanevsky, the "Lindbergh of Russia," attempted a flight across the pole from Moscow two years ago. He was forced down 800 miles out of Moscow by a broken oil line. Although he made tests with the plane last week, Levanevsky was not included in the crew.

The plane's wings are low and tapering almost to points at the tips. A single 950-horsepower motor of the 12-cylinder v-type is water cooled. The fuselage is gray, the wings red. There is a two-way radio aboard with a 20-watt transmitter. The call letters are "RETTET." The cockpit is heated and there are special air-tight compartments under the wings to keep the plane afloat. The maximum speed is 150 miles an hour.

Longest Non-Stop

The flight was following the 123rd meridian closely. It was the longest non-stop flight ever attempted. Eleven years ago Roald Amundsen and Lincoln Ellsworth made the flight from the pole to Point Barrow, but the route is virtually unexplored.

MARKET CLIMBS WITH MEDIATION BOARD SELECTED

NEW YORK, June 19.—(UP)—Appointment of a federal mediation board to cope with the steel strike rallied the stock market this week after it had dropped to new lows for the year.

Trading volume was the heaviest since the week ended May 15 because of accelerated activity on a sharp decline Monday when the industrial average lost four points and the utility average made a new low since 1935.

A rally Tuesday was followed by a decline Wednesday but the list held above the Monday lows. On Thursday market was boosted by appointment of the steel board of three headed by Charles P. Taft, 2nd.

The net result was about a standoff. The utility group made the best showing, regaining all its losses and closing higher. Oil shares were good performers on outlook for higher earnings. Railroad issues made progress, although retarded by outlook for labor difficulties.

What is good practice in hard time is good practice in good times.

Faces Death for Armed Holdup

CAPTURED by Lexington, Ky., police shortly after he had robbed the Citizens bank of Midway, Edgar Perkins, 25, faces death in the electric chair under the Kentucky armed robbery law. Perkins readily confessed, police said, that he was the lone bandit who entered the Midway bank and scooped $1,578 from the tills. Geneva Smith, 20, attractive brunet, was arrested with Smith as the driver of his car. Both Perkins and Miss Smith deny she accompanied him on the robbery expedition.

Scioto Township Pupils Return From Washington

Boys and girls of the junior and senior classes of Scioto township high school returned home Thursday evening after a tour to Washington D. C. and vicinity. All the members of the two classes except seven made the trip in a chartered bus, there being about 40 in the group.

The group was accompanied by Mrs. Ethel Fortune, sponsor of the trip, and two Columbus bus company men. Mrs. Fortune acted as chaperon for the girls.

The group stayed in Washington Tourist Camp, Washington D. C. and visited all points of interest from there. The most outstanding trips were to Gettysburg battlefield, the Capitol, the White House, Washington's monument, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Smithsonian Institute, Arlington cemetery, Annapolis Naval academy, Mt. Vernon and Alexandria. The boys and girls attended both the House of Representatives and the Senate while in session, and Representative Claypool, of Chillicothe, visited the group in camp.

This is the first group of students from Pickaway county to visit Washington D. C. and it proved an outstanding project. The seniors with Emerson Sheets as acting president started working on the project over a year ago, and this year's juniors under Aubrey Johnson joined with them. They earned their group money by giving plays, dances, box socials, selling candy and homemade ice cream. Many other high school groups of the nation have been making trips to Washington this year.

The pupils from Scioto who went on the trip included: seniors who were graduated this year; William Beavers, Everett Carrey, Gale Carrey, Kenneth Dean, Marvin Dountz, Raymond Hott, Faye McKnight, Betty Neal, George Neal, Sara Lee Prindle, Virginia Scott, Emerson Sheets, Twila Sprouse, Clara Thraillik, Lawrence Williams. From the junior class were Alston Alspaugh, Dorothy Beavers, Milo Beavers, Virgil Beavers, Dwight Bethards, Junior Borror, James Crawford, Donald Dean, Eugene Fausnaugh, Mary Fuller, Harold Green, Rosemary Hennick, John Henson, Aubrey Johnson, Geraldine Kramer, Russell Melvin, Eugene Reichelderfer, Kenneth Rodgers, Earl Wilson, Harold Wilson, Lillie M. Wilson, and Iva Rhodes. Helen Beavers, a Scioto graduate of 1936, accompanied the group.

reduced this month from 115,000 to 100,000. A further cut to 90,000 is due July 15.

While agreeing in principle that the federal government ultimately must turn the relief job back to the state and counties, many of the commissioners attending Friday's meeting maintained their counties are not financially able to shoulder the load.

If given authority to raise additional money by taxation, we should be willing to carry the load," was one expression with which several county commissioners agreed.

"The real question before us is: should not the federal government withdraw from the program when the state and counties have ability to carry it? If so, why don't you see that they do carry it?" Dr. Watson said.

J. Otis Garber, deputy W.P.A. administrator, said, "W.P.A. is primarily a works program, not a relief program."

"It was designed as an emergency agency to care for employable persons until such time as they can be absorbed in private industry," he said.

Two Attacks On Leipzig Reported To Hitler; Conferences Held

German warship was attacked in Spanish waters, when the battleships Deutschland was bombed by airplanes in the Balearic islands. Fuehrer Adolf Hitler sent a fleet to bombard Almeria and kill some 20 persons.

Hitler was at Gotesburg, on his way to Duesseldorf to attend an exhibition called "creative folk" when he was advised by special messenger of the incident.

He returned hastily to Berlin by airplane, and arriving last night, at once called into Conference Marshal Werner von Blomberg, war minister, Admiral Erich Raeder, commander in chief of the navy and Baron Constantin Von Neurath, foreign minister.

They met until 3:30 a. m. today. Then this morning Hitler again called Blomberg and Neurath into conference, along with Col.-Gen. Hermann Goering, air minister and the Fuehrer's right hand man. Goering, too, arrived by special plane in response to an urgent summons.

Hitler instructed Joachim Von Ribbentrop, ambassador at London, to inform other neutrality control powers, of the incident so a meeting could be called to consider it. Under the new agreement the meeting would be called at once to decide measures to be taken.

JOSE S. THARP SEEKS DIVORCE ON TWO CHARGES

Josie S. Tharp, Monroe township, filed suit for divorce in common pleas court Friday against H. L. Tharp, who address is unknown at the present time, charging cruelty and neglect of duty.

Mrs. Tharp's petition says she was seriously injured in an auto accident in the summer of 1936 and she is now a cripple. It contends during the time of her illness, Mr. Tharp conducted himself in a disagreeable manner, that he left on Feb. 18, this year, and his residence unknown.

She asks her name be restored to Josie Southward. They were married March 3, 1934.

GRACE REFUSES TO CEASE WORK AT STEEL MILL

Request Of Pennsylvania's Governor Turned Down Despite Dangers

The text of Grace's telegram to the governor:

"To the Honorable George H. Earle, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg:

"We acknowledge receipt of your telegram requesting us to shut down our Johnstown plant because of the report that miners are planning to assemble in the city of Johnstown next Sunday to stage a demonstration.

14,000 Deprived

"This plant has continued in operation notwithstanding the lawless attack on workmen, their families, and on the property. The consequences of closing the plant and depriving 14,000 employees and their families of their livelihood and the effect on the community could well be more serious than the demonstration you referred to.

"For us to close the plant would involve the admission on our part that the forces of law of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania are powerless to protect our men in the exercise of their right to work.

"We cannot assume the grave responsibility of making such an admission. Therefore with your knowledge of the power of the state and its resources to prevent possible disorder, you must make the decision and issue the orders if the plant is to be closed.

"In the light of all the circumstances, we sincerely hope you will find ways and means of dealing with the situation without resorting to the drastic action of ordering us to cease operating the plant.

"Respectfully yours," "E. G. Grace"

FARMERS LEARN CARE OF FIELDS AGAINST WORMS

About 200 Present To Hear State Entomologist Tell Campaign Details

The above untidy should cover 3 to 3 1/2 acres of land if scattered thinly and evenly. After mixing the poisoned bait, Friday evening, costs of the various ingredients were figured and it was found the bait cost about 43 cents for treatment of one acre. One application is usually all that is necessary to give control.

In the group of farmers attending the meeting about one half of them held up their hands when asked if they had noticed the worms in their fields.

None of the farmers present reported the loss of hogs from eating the worms. One said he had some sick hogs and had placed them in a feed lot. He believed they were sick from eating worms. Reports were received by Blair, Friday, that several farmers in the northwestern section of the county had lost hogs. These reports were being checked Saturday by Blair. Farmers said the hogs will eat the worms and leave their regular feed.

Park warned farmers not to leave the poison bait where it could be found by chickens. The mixture can be prepared and kept for four or five days before being applied.

Lower Leaves Stripped

In a wheat field on the Younklin farm infested by the worms, all the lower leaves had been stripped from the stems. Some heads had been clipped from the stem.

A corn field adjoins the infested wheat field and farmers were shown how the worms were controlled where the two fields joined. Dead worms were found in abundance in the corn field where poisoned bait was scattered Thursday night.

Bait should be spread in infested wheat fields if farmers expect to save clover and grasses, Park said. He said the wheat was rapidly ripening and it would not be injured seriously as the worms would seek green plants.

F. B. Whittington, assistant extension entomologist, assisted Park in the demonstration.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Hinton and family were visitors at the home of Mrs. Minnie McCorkle, on Tuesday.

Bible School to Conduct Services Sunday, June 27

The three-week Bible school, sponsored by the Lutheran church brotherhood, will close next Sunday, having complete charge of both the morning and evening services.

The morning program will be presented in the church; the evening service in the Parish house.

A play, "The Life of Joseph," will be presented by the junior group.

Enrollment in the school was 118 with an average daily attendance of 100 children. Seven teachers have aided in the school program.

Events scheduled for next week in the Lutheran church are: Tuesday, 7 p. m., junior choir; Friday, 9:30 a. m., Bible School picnic; 7 p. m., teachers' meeting; 7:30 p. m., senior choir, and Saturday, 2 p. m., Junior Mission band.

The Rev. G. L. Troutman will preach Sunday morning on the subject "Spiritual Diagnosis."

The Rev. T. C. Harper, pastor of the First United Brethren church, will preach Sunday morning on the subject, "Lead Us Not Into Temptation."

The Rev. and Mrs. T. C. Harper returned Saturday after a trip to Oak Harbor and Portsmouth. They attended a convention in Oak Harbor on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday and then visited friends in Portsmouth.

A one-night revival meeting will be held at the courthouse Saturday at 8 p. m. with special music and singing. Rev. James O. Miller, Columbus, will be in charge of the services.

Children's Day exercises will be held in the Church of the Brethren at 9:30 a. m., Sunday. All interested persons are invited to attend.

"Finding Christ in Life's Common Things" and "A Father's Blessing" will be the sermon subjects of the Rev. V. E. McCoy, pastor of the Nazarene church, at the services Sunday morning and evening, respectively. The sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be observed following the morning service.

Members of the Nazarene Young People's Society will give a Father's Day program at 7:15 p. m., Sunday.

Mrs. Hosler, Of Ashville, To Sing At M. E. Church

Mrs. Ralph Hosler, of Ashville, will be a guest soloist at the Holy Communion service in the Methodist church Sunday at 10:30 a. m. Mrs. Ervin Leist will be the accompanist.

The choir selection will be "Hark, Hark My Soul," by Shelley. Mrs. Delos Marcy and Miss Ruth Moffitt will sing the solo parts.

During the opening exercises there will be a baptismal service for infants and reception of new members.

The pastor urges all members of the church to attend the annual Sunday School convention Sunday afternoon and evening in the Presbyterian church.

Joseph's Kindness to His Kindred

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Genesis 45:16-50:26

By the Rev. Alvin E. Hall And Alfred J. Busch

Returning from Egypt with corn Jacob's sons brought him the glad news. "Joseph is yet alive and ruler over all the land of Egypt." For 20 years he had mourned Joseph as dead. Now Joseph had sent for Jacob.

To leave the land of promise and go to Egypt must not be done without prayer. So Jacob prayed and Jehovah answered. "Fear not to go down into Egypt for I will there make of thee a great nation, and I will surely bring thee up again."

It was a happy reunion when Joseph, now governor of Egypt, embraced Jacob his father and wept for joy. "Now let me die," said Jacob, "since I have seen thy face, that thou art yet alive."

Joseph presented his father to Pharaoh who received Jacob and his sons kindly and bowed reverently to receive Jacob's priestly blessing. Thus Joseph teaches how to forgive our brethren. (GOLDEN TEXT—Ephesians 4:32.)

2,408 CHURCHES GIVEN HELP BY FHA INSURANCE

WASHINGTON, D. C. — An analysis of the recently expired Modernization Credit Plan of the Federal Housing Administration shows that during its existence 2,408 churches took advantage of the plan to make repairs totaling $1,538,978.

Of this amount 1,769 loans were for the purposes of structural alterations and repairs totaling $1,189,046 and 639 loans, for a total value of $349,932 were used to purchase new equipment. The average value of church loans was $639.

Among the items of church equipment which were eligible for purchase with funds extended by private financial institutions and insured by the Federal Housing Administration were altar rails, baptismal fonts, bells and bell rings, book racks, chancel fonts, chimes, choir fronts and stalls, communion rails, and auditorium seats.

The Ashville barbers have increased prices from 33 to 60 percent. They are now in line with other towns. Roy Scott, county road man, with about thirty miles in his charge, will begin work again next Monday after being off the job by sickness for more than a week.

The Grays now occupy what is known as the Wright dwelling. Wendell Canter and family occupy the place made vacant by the Grays. Robert Cline is now employed at the Ashville Grain Co. elevator. The dwelling of the late Mrs. Bell in West Ashville has been appraised at $3,000. E. W. Seeds, J. R. Roof and Harry Abbott were the appraisers.

West Virginia Visitor

N. D. Sutton, former cashier of the Martinsville, W. Va. bank, and a friend of E. W. Newton, recently paid him a visit. He was not surprised at Mr. Newton's fine plant, for he knows that Newton always does things right.

SCOUT JAMBOREE

WASHINGTON, when visited, makes everyone feel proud to be an American. Always interesting and inspiring are such historic points as the Washington monument, the beautiful Lincoln memorial, the White House, the Capitol, the Smithsonian institution and still other places rich in American traditions.

The National Boy Scout Jamboree to be held in Washington, D. C., this June 30 to July 9 affords such unusual opportunities that parents of Scouts would do well to consider its values for their sons.

The Boy Scouts of America, has become a vital force in American life, having touched the lives of some 7,330,008 boys and men. In planning their Jamboree, Scouts are minding almost everyone eager to help. Railroads, for example, have granted a special cent-a-mile rate to Washington and return, thus making a trip to the nation's beautiful capital within the reach of most boys. The health authorities are assisting in the preparations to assure the health and happiness of those who participate. Congress has made available 350 acres for the encampment.

It is well that this community will be represented at this National Boy Scout Jamboree. Four outstanding results of this experience of our boys will be the benefits of travel, a better appreciation of values, a broadened viewpoint and gains in new friendships. Then, too, dear to every boy's heart is something that this jamboree offers, a camping experience of high adventure.

THE FUTURE OF LABOR

SINCE the beginning of recovery circumstances and events have operated to strengthen the position of organized labor as a powerful social and economic force in the land. The strong leadership of John L. Lewis, the sympathetic attitude of the Administration and the apparent eagerness of workers to unite in an effort to advance their own interests have all contributed to the growing dominance of organized labor in national affairs.

How will labor exercise this newly acquired power? The question is one for anxiety among those who have witnessed the abuses that are inherent in the unorganized powers of wealth and of political authority. Labor, vested suddenly with a strength with whose uses it is as yet unfamiliar, has at its command the instruments of destruction and injustice. It is not strange, under the circumstances, that there has arisen a demand that the restraints applied in the past to corporate power and to rampant capitalism shall now be used to regulate the new forces that are making their influence felt in industry.

COMMODITIES CONTROL ACT LAGS

WASHINGTON — No preaching has been heard more frequently and fervently on the lips of New Dealers than the demand for drastic regulation of speculators and market manipulators. From the President down these operators have been a pet bugaboo of the Administration.

In view of this, it is most extraordinary that the Administration has gone about enforcing the Commodities Exchange Control Act with an apparently studied indifference.

This measure was put on the statute books last June after years of agitation and battling. Its enactment was acclaimed a great New Deal triumph in the interest of the farmer. The law was to be to the farmer what the Securities and Exchange Acts are to the investor in stocks and bonds.

Yet today, twelve months later, so little has been done under this vaunted scourge that even in Washington few remember it exists. This is the administrative record under the act:

Not a single meeting held by the three-man Cabinet board -- Secretaries Wallace, Roper and Attorney General Cummings -- which was given authority to curb speculation on the commodity exchanges.

Not one regulatory rule or order issued. Not a move to check wash sales, prohibited bucketing or certain brokers' practice of using customers' funds for their own operations. Traders have been warned that the law prohibits this, but beyond that nothing has been done.

And judging from the timidity and uncertainty displayed by J. W. T. Duvel, chief of the Commodities Exchange Administration created to enforce the law, nothing is likely to be done about it. A career man of many years service in the Agriculture Department, Duvel gives every impression of having little stomach for the high-powered act placed in his hands.

Publicly he blames lack of funds for the inactivity. Last year Congress gave the CEA $300,000 which was used chiefly to assemble a staff of 70, of which 18 are located in Washington. This year $590,000 is being sought for the agency.

Whatever has been the reason, the law has been very thoroughly squelched. Henry Wallace, whose Department of Agriculture has jurisdiction over the CEA, talks as indignantly as ever about food gamblers and speculators, but he has yet to do anything to curb them with the extensive powers placed in his control.

utilities, to bar union contributions to campaign funds, to forbid strikes for political pressure purposes, to apply the Wagner Act against unfair practices by employees as well as management, and to make mandatory the registration of labor contracts. Whether the demand for such legislation grows or dies will depend upon how judiciously labor handles its new-found power.

Unless labor and its leaders demonstrate their ability and disposition to control their soaring ambitions there will soon be an overwhelming demand for public control.

Town in New York State reports plenty of relief jobs with no one to fill them. Why not consider importing a few hundred unemployed with a more typical post-depression conscience?

DIET AND HEALTH

Why Strained Vegetables Are Fed to Babis

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

QUITE A CHANGE has come over the practice of infant feeding in the last few years, especially in respect to an exclusively milk diet.

Milk is the perfect food. Certainly as nature intended, it is the perfect infant food, but as nothing in this world is completely perfect, it has one or two defects. One is that it contains too little iron, and the other is that it may contain no Vitamins C and D.

For many years children's specialists have been adding Vitamins C and D to the infant's diet, usually using orange juice for Vitamin C and cod liver oil for Vitamin D.

In late years, they have been advocating the addition of some substance which will furnish iron at a very early age.

Nature provides for the deficiency of iron in milk by supplying a reserve of iron in the liver and in the blood itself of the child before birth. This reserve might theoretically be expected to last until the child is about six months old, but it is usually exhausted before that, so that it is recommended that the iron-containing foods should be added to the infant's diet by at least the third or fourth month.

The best foods to supply iron are egg yolk and pigmented vegetables, such as spinach, carrots, etc. Cereals also contain a considerable amount of iron. It is here that the usefulness of the strained fruits and vegetables in infant feeding come in. These are now supplied by many manufacturers in the form of strained fruits in canned form.

Packed singly, they include asparagus, beets, carrots, celery, beans, peas, spinach and tomatoes. Strained fruits are also packed singly. Vegetable soups form a combination of strained vegetables, sometimes with cereal or beef broth.

These foods are well tolerated by nearly all babies, and digestive upsets from their use are rare. The digestive tract of the infant has to be gradually trained to these foods, which gradually and, therefore, large amounts cannot be fed at first. They soon get used to them, however, and thrive on them.

The manufactured articles make the vegetables into a finer state of division than can be obtained by ordinary household means.

The council on foods of the American Medical association is of the opinion that strained fruits and vegetables, because of their physical structure, are useful foods for infant feeding and for certain types of diet. They are good sources of Vitamin B, iron, and probably other necessary nutritional factors. There is also a psychological aspect in their use, which is that the baby at an early age should be taught to receive food from the spoon and to accept a variety of flavors and textures.

CHAPTER 25

SOMEWHAT heartened by the cheery presence of Lona von Brecht, Marcia returned to her apartment. Perched on the door-bell she discovered a note from Sandy stating simply he was "sorry not to find you in." Intent on the news Lona had inadvertently given her about Tony, Marcia went straight to the phone to call Ellen. With some trepidation she waited for her voice on the phone, then pretended personal worries had prompted the call.

"Can you have lunch with me tomorrow, Ellen? I want to see you," she said, and when Ellen obviously invented a feeble excuse of work to be done, she urged her further. "It's something serious, and I think you might be able to help me. I'm in a hole. Acme is throwing mud, and Sandy doesn't love me—nothing—but you will cheer me up. You will? Fine. I'll meet you at Musso's at 1."

Ellen's voice verified her suspicions, for it had none of the care-free lilt that had characterized it in those first weeks after her marriage. She had barely hung up the phone when it rang again. Sandy was on the wire and he sounded agitated.

"Why didn't you tell me you'd quit Acme?" he demanded. Marcia was afraid he might have heard some of the gossip, even been personally involved, but his next sentence relieved her. "I've just heard you were looking for work, and I can't understand why you didn't confide in me."

The girl explained that she didn't like to let it up when he was so happy over his own good fortune, and "I haven't seen you for more than five minutes at a time since then," she said in excuse.

Sandy immediately was on the defensive, and the emergency was passed for the moment. He outlined progress on the Sheer-Sheen account, won some more expense to Marcia, then he hung up. When he had finished, he went back to her problems. "Now, tell me about you."

"I'm free-lancing, battling wind-mills a la Quixote," she bantered, determining that he should not learn of her struggle and disillusionment.

"Like it better than working for one agency?" he asked interestedly, not realizing that Marcia had found every agency closed to her appeals. But she answered bravely. "Yes, it gives more scope to my work."

"Well, I'm rushed to death the rest of the week; but I've got something very important to suggest to you. In person. I'll give you a ring about Monday, and maybe you'll see me." Marcia agreed, and wondered what it was that was too important to tell over the phone. "I'm getting secret-conscious," she giggled to herself, remembering the surprise Lona von Brecht promised.

Next day she waited impatiently until 1:30 before Ellen appeared to keep her appointment. Marcia was shocked at the change in her appearance, for dark circles marred the beauty of her face, and she had a dejected look that spoke more dramatically than words.

The two young women were shown to a table on a little balcony, and Marcia watched Ellen closely as they ordered. She fingered the menu nervously, then searched the crowds of well-dressed men and women almost suspiciously. Without a doubt, Marcia thought, she had some idea of Tony's infidelity. With conscious effort, she began to talk.

"Ellen, remember the heart-to-heart talk we had about the ethics of the advertising profession, its opportunities for women? Well, I'm beginning to think it's all bunk," she said inelegantly, but with enough force to bring Ellen out of her reverie. "I quit Acme and Abe and all the rest because I didn't like underhanded methods; and now I can't find any work because they think I'm crooked! Do you know they've maliciously spread gossip through this whole city? Every time I poke my face into a public place, I can hear people whispering. 'She stole $1,000—yes, and she deliberately lifted an account from one agency and passed it along to another—and what's more, psssst!' I tell you I'm nearly crazy. It's been almost a month, and I've had a few measly little assignments."

"You can't let that get you down; not you, Marcia," Ellen said with a trace of her old smile. "You have too much at stake; your own self-respect, Sandy's, and—the work you love! Surely something will open up for you soon, my dear. You should be glad you have Sandy to fall back on. You do, don't you?" she asked seriously.

"Yes, and no. Things are still at a standstill. Only now a little hellcat artist in his office has warned me she'll take him from me if she can. Well, maybe she can. I'm sick of this see-sawing back and forth anyway. When he wants me hard enough, let him come after me."

"On whose terms, Marcia? His or yours?" "Depends on the mood I'm in when he comes, maybe," Marcia said frankly. "At the moment, I'm inclined to think I've been a darned fool. But I wouldn't tell him so, and I'm more determined than ever not to quit losers. All I need is a chance—"

"You don't realize how lucky you are, if you have a man who loves you," she said more softly. "And who would be true to you?" Marcia felt this gave her an opportunity to ask casually, "Well, how's married life with you? I haven't seen you enough since the dashing Tony took you off my hands!"

As soon as she'd asked it, she realized that "dashing" was not the safest way to describe Ellen's errant husband. "He's well," the other girl said, then seemed to feel her words. "I love him as desperately as ever, but Marcia I don't always seem to understand him. He does the most unexpected things." Ellen was too proud to complain about his faults, nor to openly admit them.

"I guess you can't organize a husband according to a set system," Marcia began, trying to get at the root of the matter. She felt that Ellen may have tried to run the household too much on a business basis: making a card index of their lives, hurt if Tony did not live up to expectations. Tony most certainly would resent any such management and such restrictions. It would be like him to step out on his wife just for pure spite. But Ellen's next remark gave Marcia still further insight into her marital problems. "Look, isn't that Tony now—with that red-haired girl over on the other balcony?" Her suspicion of the man she'd married grated on Marcia's sensibilities, and she wondered if Ellen had revealed such suspicions to Tony. Feeding over the heads of the crowd, she saw the woman Ellen had pointed out, and laughed. "Why Ellen, you must be crazy. That man doesn't look any more like Tony than I do. What's gotten into you?" Shamefacedly Ellen apologized. "I'm not very used to having a husband, Marcia. I love him so tenderly that I'd want to kill any other woman I'd find with him. It's awful to feel such stark anger. And all for no reason, of course." She tried pathetically to cover up. "Just imagination."

Knowing Ellen's unimaginative nature in most things, Marcia wondered what had sharpened her intuition now. Had she proof of Tony's fickleness, or was she just abnormally worried? And, in fact, was Tony seriously phantasmagoric or was there some excuse for the "mad" Lona had mentioned? Marcia shook her head, and thought there were so many kinds of men, so many types of women, there were no laws that could govern their actions and lead them irrevocably to happiness.

Then she thought about Ellen and Tony. Ellen was able to manage complicated and nerve-racking details of office routine without losing her temper or her sense of humor, yet when it came to her private life she seemed more ineffectual and helpless than a baby. She'd wanted marriage above all things, yet look at the misery it had brought her! Evidently, she had the misfortune to love the wrong man; or to love the right man the wrong way!

"You're the lucky one, Ellen," she said with more assurance than she felt. "I saw Lona von Brecht the other day, and she remarked about how fine Tony looked. Said he was telling everybody how happy he was."

"Really?" Ellen eagerly drank in her words, and seemed to take new life from their comfort. Marcia didn't know how to go about helping her, other than to give her this much-needed confidence. Tony probably would settle down if he had good reasons.

This thought recurred to her with violent force two days later when Tony called her on the phone. Considering the new calm Ellen had when she'd left her, she was shocked beyond words at Tony's hysterical plea. "Hurry down to General Hospital, will you, Marcia? It's Ellen. She took some kind of poison, and she's still unconscious. Hurry, I'm nearly crazy!"

PAGES from the Diary of an Antiquated Reporter:

Up early and much surprised to find sunshine, so quickly below stairs and to the back yard for a bit of glow and fresh air. Hailed by Neighbor H. W. Plum, who declared that until then he had believed the "early rising" to be a figment of a columnist's imagination. A cup of coffee, the morning paper and then away on affairs of the day.

Met Dr. Otto Towers who was married in 1913. One of his sons was born August 13, another March 13 and his last boy went twice thirteen and was born on the 26th of June. "So I am not a bit superstitious," he declares. Accepted the application of Bill Kocheiser for membership in the Coffee Club and warned him to ignore invitations of Paul Johnson and Charlie Gilmore who enjoy matching coins and drink acot free most of the time. Here comes Bill Crist in for a chat. Then a succession of salesmen, all bearing bad news of rising prices. Escaped between entrances and took to the paves for a bit of optimism and found it in one store where there was a big run on Paris green, the buyers being farmers whose crops are threatened by army worms.

Almost choked on a drug in city water, more being present than have noted at any time since 1917-1918 when the American doughboys after one whiff of bilster bags ignored a general order and drank French well water, that was safe, but tasted like something that rhymed with shell.

Home, then, in the late afternoon to pack fishing tackle and other equipment against a 2 o'clock in the morning departure for Upper Michigan. All the fish in Michigan would not be enough to fill the orders put in by friends in the last week, nor are there as many fish as the scrivener has promised to catch. Fishermen are notorious liars, so no one really is expecting a shipment, which is a pleasant thought.

Back to the plant then for a conference with executives and to read in their expressions confidence that they will do better with me away than here. An hour over the books and then home for a restless evening, worrying and wondering about the sensation of listening to an alarm clock's wild jangle at 1:30. Soothed by a beaker of milk and a deck of wafers, did turn in early, feeling certain that I had forgotten to pack some important item that would be sorely missed in the woods.

This cat's name is Tige, and he's tougher than a ward healer and as smart as a politician. We don't know how good he'd be stuffing ballot boxes but he's strictly Grade A when it comes to stuffing himself with mice.

One look at Tige and it's a cinch every White House mouse would resign his office and go back to his native wharf.

On second thought, we'll have to keep Tige. He's been around here so long even the oldest inhabitant cannot recall when he was born. That probably makes him more than 70 years old and no good for government service.

TWO LOCAL champions may have to go into retirement if New York City's idea of a Clean Sidewalks association spreads to this thriving, bustling industrial center.

The two champs are Stubby Mc-Litter and Ida Messing. For two decades this pair has led all citizens in converting our sidewalks into flat, cement waste baskets.

Stubby's specialty is cigaret butts. In tossing away a cigaret butt, or ex-fag, as it is scientifically called, Stubby has never thrown one out of bounds, that is, in the gutter. They always hit sidewalk and lay there smoldering like a broken dream.

Stubby's best record was made last July 4. In a local railroad station. He tossed so many cigaret butts onto the erstwhile immaculate floor he kept two porters busy for four hours.

Ida Messing shines at littering sidewalks with chewing gum wrappers and gum itself. She discards the wrappers anywhere but her aim with the gum is unerring. She always hits a spot — usually a doorway — where someone is bound to step.

Ida's outstanding feat was her performance at a Memorial Day picnic. She scattered not only chewing gum wrappers, but paper plates, bread crumbs, napkins, banana and orange peel, soda water bottles and caps, tin cans and toothpicks over four acres of what had been beautiful countryside.

AN AFRICAN rhinoceros attempting to outrance a railroad train, derailed the locomotive and got itself killed. Sometimes, it seems, animals act with almost human-dumbness.

So far, fortunately, no one has pulled the crack about the Soviet's new airport in the Arctic undoubtedly becoming one of Russia's frozen assets.

Judging by editorial comment on American Commissioner Paul McNutt's request he be toasted first at Manila diplomatic dinner parties, the editors seem to think he meant "roasted" first.

Eastern Star Inspection Attracts Crowd of 550

Marie L. Hamilton and
P. R. Devore Honored
at Ceremonies

About 550 members of the Order of the Eastern Star attended the annual inspection of the Circleville chapter, Friday evening, in Memorial Hall. Preceding the inspection, a three-course dinner was served in Masonic Temple to 265 guests.

Tables were placed in the dining room and the Red room, with several smaller tables in the entrance rooms to accommodate the large number of persons. The decorations carried out a color theme of blue and yellow, and a nautical plan was followed in the favors and decorations of the large table placed in the center of the dining room where the grand officers and representatives were seated. Blue cellophane was placed the entire length of the table, representing a stream of water, on which at intervals were water lily candle holders with tall blue and yellow tapers.

A gold ship model, with miniature figures on deck representing Miss Marie L. Hamilton, worthy grand matron, and Mr. P. R. Devore, of Columbus, worthy grand patron, formed the centerpiece. Each place was marked with a tiny gold ship, holding a tiny hand-made cream pitcher bib, as a favor. All appointments of the table were of blue and yellow, and the flowers placed at spaced intervals were blue larkspur and corymbis. Other tables were arranged in similar fashion omitting only the center ship model. Large baskets of blue and yellow garden flowers and various colored rambler roses were placed around the rooms, forming a lovely background for the pleasant affair. The dinner was prepared and served by Hanley's Tea Room.

The annual inspection was held in the auditorium of Memorial Hall at 7:30 o'clock. The large hall was arranged as a chapter room for the inspection of the ritualistic work. The stage was enclosed on three sides with a background of evergreens with a brilliant star in the center of the stage. Across the front of the stage, was a low white trellis entwined with red and pink rambler roses. On either side of the steps leading to the stage were tall seven-branched candelabra with white tapers. Many baskets and tall red pedestal vases of roses and garden flowers were used at the front of the hall, and disposed advantageously through the room. The soft lighting of many beautiful lamps completed the attractive setting for the chapter work.

At 7:30 o'clock the officers attended in their pink moire taffeta dresses entered the Chapter room at Memorial Hall and Mrs. Carl D. Bennett, worthy matron, was escorted to the East. The worthy matron in a few well-chosen words and in a gracious manner immediately welcomed Miss Hamilton, worthy grand matron of the grand chapter of Ohio, and Mr. Devore, worthy grand patron, to the East. In a unique ceremony, the pages presented Mr. Devore a certificate of honorary membership in Circleville chapter.

Graduate Honored
Mrs. W. I. Spangler and Miss Anna L. Pontius of Tarlton have returned after a visit in Columbus. While there they attended a reception and dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Millson, honoring their daughter Marian, who was graduated Monday from the College of Arts and Sciences, of Ohio State university. Mrs. Millson is a niece of Miss Pontius, and at one time made her home with her aunt in Tarlton.

Among those included in the guest list were Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Spangler and daughter Nancy Ann, of Circleville. Mrs. W. I. Spangler and daughter Marjorie Ann and Miss Pontius, of Tarlton.

Presbyterian Missionary Society
The Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church met in the social room of the church Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock with Miss Edith Haswell, president, in the chair for a short business session. Mrs. Charles Naumann was in charge of the devotionals.

During the afternoon Mrs. G. H. Colville read the report of the Presbyterian meeting held in Plain City, Tuesday, June 8.

Luncheon Guests
The Misses Lucia Kreider, Pauline Neff, Grace Heffner, Ruth Morris and Mrs. Robert Bower were recent luncheon guests at the home of Miss Ella Mae Spangler, of Tarlton.

Afternoon Party
Mrs. E. E. Porter, of Pickaway township, entertained at an afternoon party, Friday, in honor of the seventh birthday anniversary of her daughter Marilyn.

The hours between 2 and 4 were spent in games and contests, the prize in the milk bottle contest going to Nancy Watt.

Party decorations and refreshments were carried out in a color scheme of pink and green. Guests for the occasion included Virginia, Violet and George D. McDowell, Donna Jean and Patricia Ann Howell, Dolores McKenzie, Nancy Watt, Rosemary Mumaw, Bobby and Dickie Porter. Mrs. Porter was assisted by Mrs. Cyril McKenzie and Mrs. Fred Howell.

Birthday Party
Honoring Dolores Anne McKenzie on her seventh birthday anniversary, Mrs. Cyril McKenzie and Mrs. Fred Kreider entertained recently at their home in Pickaway township. The fourteen guests, who arrived at two o'clock, were Betty Baldoser, Elaine Bahnsen, Ann Bradley, Bonnie Lou Dearth, Carolyn Dearth, Margaret Dearth, Ronald Dearth, Jane Dyer, Nancy McGinnis, Marguerite Kelly, Marilyn Porter, Rita Rhoads, Joyce Ann Sweetson, and Carolyn Mae Wright.

The afternoon was spent in various games. Refreshments were served at 4 o'clock, at a table decorated in a color theme of pink and green. Above the table was suspended an enormous cluster of vari-colored balloons which were given the guests by the hostess as favors. Others present for the delightful party were Mrs. G. D. Bradley, Mrs. John Dearth, Mrs. Sam Dearth, Miss Ruth McKenzie, Mrs. K. G. Majors, Mrs. Gene Porter, Mrs. G. Sweetson and Mrs. Harry Wright.

Bridge Club Meets

Mrs. R. L. Brehmer, of N. Court street, entertained the members of her bridge club, Thursday evening, at her home. Mrs. Pearl Page, Miss Helen Rowe, Mrs. T. P. Brown and Mrs. C. E. Hunter were additional guests. When scores were tallied awards were given Mrs. Hervey Sweyer and Mrs. A. H. Rodgers.

Mrs. Wallace Crist will entertain the club in two weeks.

Saturday Luncheon

Mrs. R. D. Harmon, of Indian Lake, entertained the members of a former Circleville club at a luncheon, Saturday, at her home. She was assisted in serving by her daughters-in-law, Mrs. Otto Harmon and Mrs. Will D. Harmon, of Indian Lake.

Style Whimsies

A Chanel creation is a suit that has slightly flared skirt, a short, loose jacket that buttons up the front, but should be left open to show the plaid vest underneath. This vest is made high at the neck with a turnover collar that is worn outside the neckline of the brown jacket.

Whites are varied this summer, with chalk, porcelain, oyster and gardenia variations, some containing a little more blue and some a little more yellow than the everyday and garden variety of white.

Painted porcelain jewelry is being worn by smart young folk in Paris. The jewelry combines rhinestones and porcelain flowers.

Beads in single or double strands are being sold freely to wear with sweater suits.

Wouldn't it be great if a tenth of what the advertisers claim of beauty preparations were true?

WINNINGER GUEST

One of the most colorful personalities on the stage, in radio, or on the screen will step to the mike when veteran Charles Winninger makes a guest appearance on NBC for Jack Benny on June 20.

Not only was Charles Winninger the original choice of the late great Ziegfeld for the role of the immortal captain in his Broadway production of "Show Boat," but he was the screen's "Show Boat" captain — and he performed with spectacular success in each instance. Interesting in this connection is the fact that Winninger was at one time a genuine river showboatman. It was in the year of 1900 that Charlie first became an actor on a real river steamer, Captain Adams' "Cotton Blossom."

But bad storms on the Mississippi caused him to leave, to return to vaudeville with his family troupe, Oliver J. Waddell estate, authenticated copy of will filed.

EVEN SO-CALLED EXPERTS BAFFLED AS BRADDOCK-LOUIS FIGHT NEARS

BETS ARE FEW WITH BIG NEGRO RATED HIGHEST

No Abductions, Shootings or Fixes Reported With Battlers Ready

CHAMPION PLAYS GOLF

Detroit Plays His Mouth Organ as Training

By HENRY McLEMORE
CHICAGO, June 19 — (UP) — With the world's heavyweight championship fight only a few days away, the experts are frankly baffled. They are borrowing the words of the late, great Tex Rickard, muttering, "I never seen nothing like it." And the chances are they never did.

Here we are on what might be called the very eve of the meeting between Jim Braddock and Joe Louis and there hasn't been a single scandal. Nobody has called anybody any names. There have been no sinister rumors. There have been no tales of kidnapping, shooting, rescues in the lake, secret training tactics, poisonings, gangster influence or what is sometimes called, in a facetious vein, of course, "the fix."

Up-and-Down Fight Seen

In other words this is, to all outward appearances, going to be an up-and-down fight between Braddock and Louis for the world's heavyweight championship.

No one seems to find the situation in the least disconcerting except the experts, 500 strong and gathered in Chicago's liquid loop.

One report has it that Comiskey Park, where the fight will be held, has been sold out for days. The official estimate a week ago was placed the money in the bank at $600,000. Yet another report has it that there are plenty of choice seats available.

A few facts, however, have been attested. Both warriors rested today, building strength and character for the coming encounter. The champion — Braddock — played what he calls golf, but which one of his sparring partners calls "digging."

Mouth Organ Used

Louis was even more relaxed with the fight only three days off. He spent most of his waking hours, which constitute about ten percent of the day, playing the mouth organ. They will both work tomorrow.

Both have dedicated Monday to thinking. On Tuesday the champion and the challenger will weight in at high noon and fight, if all goes according to schedule, that evening.

The only sure thing about this fight is that it will set some sort of all-time low for betting. There doesn't seem to be a Braddock dime in sight, even at 2½ to 1. Sammy Wolf and Babe Barron, the local Jack Doyles, have $25,000 to place on Louis at those odds and haven't even had a phone call.

Any way you look at it the fight is very baffling to the assembled experts, who are so confused that they can't even pick the winner. And when you get an expert who doesn't know the winner of a fight, you've really got something.

RAIN MAY LEVEL ODDS ON DERBY FOR $25,000 CASH

CHICAGO, June 19 — (UP) — Threats of rain levelled odds on the heavily favored Milky Way farm's entries in today's 28th running of the $25,000 American derby.

Ehtel V. Mars' Case Ace, Military and Mars' Shield remained the favorites, however, among the 11 three-year-olds named for the mile-and-a-quarter test.

Others are Eagle Pass, Over the Top, Burning Star, Yellow Tulip, Grey Gold, Sunset Trail II, Dello, and Dawn Play.

Case Ace, with next to the outside position, will carry 121 pounds. Dawn Play, granddaughter of Man O' War, was awarded the pole position, with 116 pounds. Mars' Shield also will carry 116 pounds, and the others 118.

STANFORD TEAM TO FORCE U. S. C. IN N. C. FOUR-A

EDWARDS STADIUM, BERKELEY, Cal., June 19 — (UP) — National Collegiate Athletic Association track and field champions were being crowned in Edwards stadium today in a battle royal for 14 titles.

In that battle were approximately 300 athletes from 65 colleges and universities. When each contest was over the victor was to be honored in a flag raising ceremony with Olympic pomp and ceremony.

Coaches and athletes agreed two days ago that University of Southern California would win its sixth team championship. But today the whispers had broken into headlines predicting that Stanford university would win. Indiana had the best chance of any of the eastern teams to turn the trick.

The four favorites were the pole vault twins of Troy, Earle Meadows and Bill Sefton, who were expected to tie again at a new world record in their event. Few doubted that the vaulting twins could clear the bar at better than 15 feet.

Reds Smack Hubbell, Win Behind Grissom

CINCINNATI, June 19 — (UP) — The Cincinnati Reds seemed on the road to a higher perch in the National league today as they went after the New York Giants in the second game of the series here.

The Reds gave the home fans a great day yesterday when they defeated the Giants 5 to 3 in the opener. To do this they had to knock the great Carl Hubbell out of the pitcher's box—the sixth straight time he has suffered such a fate.

Paul Derringer, luckless Cincinnati hurler, was to make another try for his second victory of the season today. Clydel Castleman was the probable Giant pitching choice.

Yesterday's game was won and lost in the first three innings. The Giants took a 3 to 1 lead in the first inning but in the third the Reds banged out enough hits to make four runs. That ended the scoring.

Lee Grissom did a noble job of pitching for Cincinnati as he licked New York for the second this season. The young southpaw allowed the Giants five safe hits.

In the third inning, Cuyler and Weintraub of the Reds were walked. Hafey sacrificed to advance them. Hubbell took Jordan's hopper and threw to the plate to catch Cuyler but Mancuso dropped the ball. Kampouris doubled, scoring Weintraub and Jordan. Kampouris then scored on Riggs' triple.

RIGGS IN LEAD FOR CLAY COURT TENNIS HONORS

RIVER FOREST, Ill., June 19 — (UP) — Bobby Riggs, defending champion from Los Angeles, today led the way into semi-finals of the National Clay courts tennis tournament.

Riggs defeated Elwood Cooke, Portland, Ore., yesterday, 6-2, 6-4, was pitted against Arthur Hendrix, Lakeland, Fla., in today's semi-finals. Hendrix, seeded 10th nationally, defeated Wilbur Coen, Jr., Kansas City, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3.

The other semi-final match is between Walter Senior, San Francisco, who eliminated Walter Guernsey, Orlando, Fla., 4-6, 7-5, 6-2, and Joe Hunt, Los Angeles, who defeated Thane Halstead, Oak Park, Ill., 7-5, 6-1.

INDIANS TO USE HUDLIN AGAINST RISING RED SOX

BOSTON, June 19 — (UP) — To the Cleveland Indians today went the unsavory task of trying to halt the rise of the Boston Red Sox who have five consecutive victories to their credit.

Willis Hudlin, Cleveland pitcher, was expected to face Lefty Grove of the Red Sox in the second game of the series today. Grove has not served them up to the Indians previously this season.

The Indians failed to stop Boston in the opening game here yesterday. Boston scored two runs in the eighth to make certain of a 5 to 4 victory. The defeat was the fourth in a row for Cleveland and shoved the team into fifth place, five games behind the leading New York Yankees.

About This And That In Many Sports

What of Hubbell?

Although he was knocked out of the box in his sixth successive start, Friday, by the Cincinnati Redlegs, Carl Hubbell, greatest of lefthanded pitchers in the Big Show today, still draws the plaudits of the baseball world. . . . The slender crooked-arm, who set a record for consecutive victories in league play the last part of the 1936 season and the first part of the 1937 chase, just hasn't been able to get going since his streak was broken a couple of weeks ago. . . . What is wrong with him, you ask? . . . One person gives one answer, and another can offer a different reason. . . .

Let-Down Natural

After each record-breaking fete there is a natural let-down. . . . When a golfer shoots for a par score and either makes it or fails by a stroke or two, he might score bogey on every hole thereafter; after a target expert scores bull's-eyes on a number of successive attempts, he usually falls far below form in his first practice drill. . . . The same thing holds true when a batter has hit safely in a long string of games, or when an infielder goes for a long while without an error. . . . There is just a hull as natural as a day's long . . . Why couldn't Hubbell's fault be attributed to the same thing? . . .

Still Great Hurler

Even though he loses for the next month he remains a great pitcher. . . . It isn't logical that he should lose his effectiveness all at once, but there isn't any one person who can point out just what has happened to the man who is referred to every once in a while as Bill Terry's meal-ticket, whether that be right or wrong. . . . Hubbell is still a hero; when he was driven out at Cincinnati Friday after walking two men, having one score on an error, two more on a double and a fourth on a long triple he was cheered by the assemblage. . . . Hubbell does not alibi; neither did he crow when he was in the midst of his streak. . . . He can't tell you what is wrong; neither can Terry. . . .

Reds to Spend Cash?

We read with considerable interest the story sent out by the Cincinnati Redleg office that President Povel Crosley has given General Manager Warren Giles a blank check with simple orders that he go out after good minor league ball players. . . . Where is he going to get them? Is the first question; and just how much is he going to spend? Is another. . . . We wonder if the attack made on the moneyed-men of the Redlegs the other evening by a Dayton sports announcer had anything to do with the announcement money was to be spent. . . . Si Burick of the Daily News hopped on Crosley at all for putting the "no go" sign on the purse. . . .

How Much Do You Know?

1—What country was unofficial winner of 1936 winter Olympics?

2—When was the first Kentucky Derby run?

3—Who finished third in the recent National Open golf tourney?

The Answers

1—Norway with 121 points.

2—In 1875.

3—Bobby Cruickshank.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

THE CANNIBAL COUP
SIDNEY S. LENZ is the one who eventually found the best name for a fancy play which for years had been known as the "suicide coup". When he once heard a German call his partner a "menschenfresser" for squeezing him, he translated the name of the play into "cannibal coup" because one player devours the other.

Melville Alexander of New York held the South cards on this deal in the eastern championships and opened the bidding with 1-Diamond. West overcalled with 1-Spade, North called 2-Clubs and South leaped into 5-Diamonds. Mr. Alexander's favorite partner, Harry B. Raffel, properly took this to 6-Diamonds, and West led the heart 4.

The heart Q and K falling on this, Mr. Alexander tried the diamond Ace, only to find that what had looked like a cinch now became a problem, with West discarding a spade and East endowed with five trumps to the 10-8. With a spade loser marked as almost certain by West's bid, he had to avoid the loss of a trump trick to East. To do this, he had to get rid of enough of his trumps so that he would not have to lead to East from his own hand on the last two tricks.

Trumps were cashed on the third and fourth tricks, the club Ace taken in, the heart 10 finessed, the heart Ace laid down for a discard of the club Q and a club ruffed with the diamond 3. The spade 3 was led to the Ace, another club ruffed with the 7, and all was ready. The spade Q was led to the K, and West could do nothing but devour his partner like a man-eater. On his return, East had to play from the 10-8 of trumps, giving Mr. Alexander last whack at him with the J-9.

Volume of Mortgages in Ohio Shows Big Increase

COLUMBUS, June 19.—The savings, building and loan associations of Ohio increased their volume of mortgages accepted for insurance by the Federal Housing Administration 7 percent, in the amount of $1,238,700 during April, according to a statement issued by John E. Harper, state director, Federal Housing Administration.

Evidence of home ownership promotion was shown by the fact that 39 percent of the savings, building and loan associations' volume of mortgages accepted for insurance in Ohio since the inception of the Federal Housing Administration was advanced for the construction of new homes.

This represented the purchase of 1170 moderate-priced homes which will be debt-free in a period of twenty years or less through the medium of small monthly mortgage amortization payments. A volume of $7,028,670 in mortgages accepted for insurance through these associations for this type of financing was revealed by the report.

"This splendid cooperation by the Ohio associations," said Mr. Harper, "contributed to a 6.7 percent increase by savings, building and loan associations nationally in their volume of mortgages accepted for insurance by the Federal Housing Administration for the month of April, 1937."

Through April 30, 1937, 1207 savings, building and loan associations throughout the United States accounted for 28,177 mortgages accepted for insurance, amounting to $110,059,070.

END PAINTING EXPENSE

COVER the walls of your frame house with Careystone Siding, and they will never again need painting. The resulting saving will repay the cost of the improvement, and the extra protection will make the house warmer in winter and cooler in summer.

Careystone Siding is made of asbestos and cement; it is as weather-proof and fire-proof as stone. Only a few days are required to cover the walls of an average house, and the interior is not disturbed while the work is going on.

Let us give you an estimate on modernizing your home with Careystone Siding—no obligation, of course.

Uncle Sam Is Insuring All Loans

By A. L. GUCKERT
(Director, Federal Housing Administration for the Columbus District)

From all sections of the Columbus FHA district — comprising 43 counties in central and south-eastern Ohio — come requests for information as to the fundamental service and function of the government's mortgage insurance plan.

Briefly stated, the Federal Housing Administration is a Governmental Mortgage insuring agency, being wholly cooperative and constructive in every phase of its operation. It is designed to benefit the home owner, the purchaser, the builder and the institution lending the money. It can only function in conjunction with the financial institution, and is therefore non-competitive.

The plan is constructive because it opened the way to the banks, building and loan companies, and other lending concerns with dormant surplus funds, to make mortgage loans without the element of risk. It enabled home owners to rewrite expensive mortgage contracts on favorable terms of repayment and equitable interest rates. It stimulated the long-idle building industry into peak operations, with resultant revival of activity in scores of other industries whose products go into modern homes.

As to benefits accruing to the home owner, the purchaser and the builder, of first importance is the simple and understandable mortgage contract that supplants the old vague and mysterious instruments. The FHA long-term contracts materially reduce the monthly payments. The plan also permits those desiring to build or purchase homes to do so with an outlay of only 20 percent of the cost. Through the property standards requirements the prospective builder is guaranteed a sound structure, competent labor and choice materials.

Under the FHA plan interest is computed monthly instead of semi-annually, resulting in a substantial saving over former obsolete methods. It protects the equity of the borrower during the life of the loan, eliminates the former embarrassment and financial loss of refinancing, and the property is made more salable by having stood the test of the FHA's accurate appraisal and risk-rating system.

The Federal Housing Administration insures loans up to 80 percent of the appraised value on one-to-four family dwellings and such loans may run for any period up to 20 years. These loans may be used for the purchase of a home, refinancing mortgages on existing property or for the building of new homes. The maximum amount insurable on any piece of property is $16,000.

REFINISHED FLOORS NEED CLEANING FIRST

The first thing to be done to wood floors that are to be refinished is to clean them thoroughly with a solution of lye. Then any ridges or rough places should be scraped down and a stain applied.

If the flooring is edge grained, the stain should be combined with a filler, and after that the wax may be applied direct. Generally about three coats are necessary, as it is quickly absorbed by the wood. Shellac or floor varnish may be used before the wax, if desired.

MIRRORED NICHE

When there is a closet in a bedroom that is too narrow to hold a dress hanger on a rod, the doors may be removed, the closed lined with glass paneling, and the result is a mirrored niche for a dressing table.

WARM WEATHER TIME FOR FIXING OF FIREPLACES

One is not likely to give much attention to a fireplace during the Summer months, but as soon as the chill of Fall evenings comes along the fireplace that does not draw properly is an exasperation.

Summer, when the fire is not used, is an excellent time to correct any faults. If a fireplace smokes it should be analyzed; and unless a hill or clump of trees rises higher than the chimney and causes a down draught when the wind approaches the house from that direction, the situation can be remedied.

Some of the causes of a smoking fireplace are a flue that is too small, or one that has not been started directly over the center of the fireplace or one that has sharp turns in it, clogged with lumps of mortar. Other possible causes are too high an opening, no smoke shelf, an inadequate smoke chamber, a damper that does not fit the opening or a chimney that is not high enough to clear the top roof ridge.

Homes that are bought under the terms of the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration may have such improvements made.

YARD FOR DRYING PRESERVES VIEW

When consulting your architect about plans for a new home it is well, if ground permits, to provide space for an enclosed drying yard. This prevents the view from your terrace, or your neighbor's being spoiled by clothes drying in the yard.

The Federal Housing Administration will insure a mortgage for the purchase of a new home, if the property meets certain requirements of design, neighborhood, and construction.

When an Uninsured Motorist Drives, His Savings Ride With Him

OLD-TIME KITCHENS OFFER POSSIBILITIES

The large kitchens of old-fashioned houses do not adapt themselves easily to modern housekeeping when the housewife plans her routine with a view to step-saving. Many people like the general roominess of the house of the large-kitchen era, but want their domestic workshop more compact. These kitchens may be divided, and dining alcoves, pantries, or closets or lavatories may be made. Homes bought under the terms of the Insured Mortgage System of the Federal Housing Administration may be improved in this way, if desired.
